

Flynkke

Overview

A drinking game that combines Boot Throwing (Saappaanheitto). Teams take turns knocking over a bottle in the center with a rubber boot to earn drinking time, while the opposing team races to set the bottle back up and stop them.

Equipment

- 1 rubber boot
- 1 empty bottle (placed in the center as the target)
- 1 full 0.33 L drink can per player

Setup

- Divide players into two equal teams, standing in two lines facing each other across the field.
- Place the empty bottle in the exact middle of the field between the two teams.

Gameplay

1. Throwing the Boot

- Teams take turns throwing the boot at the central bottle and attempts to knock it over.

2. Knocking the Bottle Over & Drinking

- If the bottle is knocked over, the thrower's entire team begins drinking as fast as possible.
- Simultaneously, one player from the opposing team must sprint into the middle, stand the bottle back up, pick up the boot, and run back to their own team's line.

3. Stopping the Drink

- Once the retrieving player returns to their line, they shout "STOP!"
- The drinking team must immediately stop drinking and refrain from touching them until their next successful hit.
- The player who retrieved the boot takes the next throw for their team.

4. Penalties

- If any player accidentally knocks over a drink can (their own or a teammate's) at any point during the game, that player must immediately replace it with a new, full unopened drink.

Winning

Checking Cans: When a player believes that its drink is finished, they request a referee inspection. Empty cans must be completely drained.

Victory: The first team to have all of their drink cans officially inspected and verified as completely empty wins the game.